

EUREKA SERIES

Spring 2022 Edition

Edited on 10 November 2021

RULES & REGULATIONS

1. Introduction

EUREKA SERIES – hereby referred to as “the programme” or “the training programme” – is a training programme initiated and organised by SERIES MANIA (Association du Festival international des séries de Lille / Hauts-de-France) in partnership with LA FEMIS (Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Métiers de l’Image et du Son).

EUREKA SERIES is one of the training programmes carried out by the SERIES MANIA INSTITUTE. The SERIES MANIA INSTITUTE is an initiative created by SERIES MANIA to reinforce the training of European professionals working in the television sector, with three main objectives:

- Create a European creative network to encourage the sharing of knowledge and creative emulation across borders
- Remove barriers between television professions, to unite writers, directors, producers and broadcasters around a common work culture, in order to improve the flow of the creative process and respond to an increase in production volume
- Open up the industry to more diverse profiles, allowing more representation in the stories that are told and in who is telling them.

EUREKA SERIES is a 12-week full-time training programme targeting television drama series writers with an interest in creative producing from all over Europe. EUREKA SERIES takes place in Lille, in the Hauts-de-France region.

Through lectures, masterclasses, case studies and workshops on personal series projects, its aim is to strengthen the common language between TV series professionals and increase their knowledge of the great diversity of production ecosystems on the continent, from a financial, regulatory and cultural perspective. This will facilitate future cross-border collaborations and inspire them to transform their local working methods. It will also help them to understand the challenges faced by other television drama professionals: directors, commissioners, actors, international buyers and sellers, etc.

Objectives:

- Acquire a common language amongst television professionals on serial dramaturgy
- Master the principles of how the European and international television series ecosystems operate
- Participate in writing workshops in order to master the creative process of collaborative writing
- Ascertain the challenges of European television series financing from both a macro-and micro-economic point of view

- Manage the artistic direction of a European television series project
- Acquire the skills to pitch and sell a European television series to investors (co-producers, broadcasters, streaming platforms, etc).

To ensure fair representation of the diversity of European series experts and professionals, SERIES MANIA INSTITUTE and LA FEMIS have decided to associate selected schools and institutions with EUREKA SERIES, referred to as “founding partners”. Each of EUREKA SERIES’ founding partners has acquired a high degree of expertise in series-focused training programmes and developed a network of experts and professionals in the field of television drama.

2. The process

14 (fourteen) participants will be selected to take part in the 12-week programme.

Once selected, the participants will constitute several working groups. Each working group will work on original European series projects developed by each member of the group throughout the course of EUREKA SERIES.

In Lille, during the first 11 (eleven) weeks of EUREKA SERIES, the 14 (fourteen) selected participants will take part in 4 (four) distinct types of pedagogical modules focused on television drama series: lectures, masterclasses, case studies and practical workshops on their respective European series projects.

- Each lecture will consist of a theoretical class on a specific aspect of television series writing and production, using pre-existing television series as teaching examples.
- The participants will meet experienced international television series professionals during masterclasses organised on site and via videoconference.
- Each case study will analyse a specific television series from the past 10 (ten) years with its artistic team (writer(s), producer(s), director(s), etc.)
- During each workshop, the participants will be given study documents related to the creation and production process of television series (bibles, moodboards, scripts, budget sheets, etc.)

During the last week of EUREKA SERIES, the participants will work on creative packages for their respective European series projects. At the end of this process, the projects will be pitched to a final jury.

The final jury will comprise experienced television professionals (writers, producers, commissioners, etc.) and will assess the relevance, artistic value, international potential and originality of the participants’ series projects developed during the training programme.

The final jury must give feedback to all participants after the pitching session.
